

Directives for the 2004 Planning Rule

The Forest Service has issued twelve (12) interim directives to Forest Service Manuals 1330, 1900, and 1920 and Forest Service Handbook 1909.12 establishing procedures and responsibilities for implementing the 2004 planning rule (published in the Federal Register on January 5, 2005). An Interim Directive (ID) modifies previous direction or establishes new direction for a period of up to 18 months. Procedural and technical details associated with implementing the 2004 planning rule are needed immediately for units to be able to begin or adapt plan amendments or plan revisions.

Twelve Interim Directives for 2004 Planning Rule

Document	Description
FSM 1330, New Management Strategies	Removes new perspectives in ecosystem management and adds guidance for Environmental Management Systems
FSM 1900, Zero Code	Makes authorities, objectives, and definitions consistent with the 2004 planning rule.
FSM 1900, Chapter 1920, Land Management Planning	Manual for land management planning under the 2004 planning rule. (see Outline below)
FSH 1909.12, Land management Planning Handbook, Zero Code	Handbook authorities, responsibilities and definitions
FSH 1909.12, chapter 10, Land Management Plan	How to write a plan
FSH 1909.12, chapter 20, The Adaptive Planning Process	How to address the process including EMS
FSH 1909.12, chapter 30, Public Participation, Collaboration, and Notification	How to collaborate
FSH 1909.12, chapter 40, Science and Sustainability	How to meet social, economic, and ecological sustainability requirements
FSH 1909.12, chapter 50, Plan Set of Documents	How to keep the record
FSH 1909.12, chapter 60, Timber and Forest Vegetation Resource Planning	How to do timber suitability and calculate long term sustained yield,
FSH 1909.12, chapter 70, Wilderness Evaluation	How to inventory and evaluate wilderness potential
FSH 1909.12, chapter 80, Wild and Scenic River Evaluation	How to inventory and evaluate wild and scenic river potential
