An aerial photograph capturing a massive wildfire in a pine forest. The fire is intense, with bright orange and yellow flames visible through the trees. Thick, dark grey smoke billows upwards, partially obscuring the sky. The surrounding forest is dense with green pine trees, some of which are being consumed by the fire. The overall scene is one of a large-scale natural disaster.

The Defense Contract Management Agency (DCMA) is the Department of Defense (DoD) component that works directly with Defense suppliers to help ensure that DoD, Federal, and allied government supplies and services are delivered on time, at projected cost, and meet all performance requirements.

A soldier in camouflage gear is sitting on a sandy beach. A dog is lying down in front of him. The background shows a bright sky and some equipment. The text is overlaid in yellow.

DCMA professionals serve as "information brokers" and in-plant representatives for military, Federal, and allied government buying agencies -- both during the initial stages of the acquisition cycle and throughout the life of the resulting contracts.

On March 27, 2000, the DoD renamed DCMC as the Defense Contract Management Agency and established it independently from DLA. DoD Directive 5105.64, signed Sept. 27, 2000, formally established DCMA's purpose and mission and, except for specific exceptions detailed in the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement, required all DoD contract administration functions to be delegated to DCMA.
