Annual Bob Marshall Complex Meeting to be Held April 25 in Lincoln, MT

The public is invited to the annual spring meeting for the Bob Marshall Wilderness Complex on Saturday, April 25, 10am – 3pm, at the Lambkins Restaurant in Lincoln, Montana. Lambkins Restaurant is located at 460 Main Street in Lincoln, Montana.

For more than 20 years this meeting has taken place to share information among the various agencies and organizations that hold responsibilities related to the wilderness complex and the public. Topics of discussion will include an update on trail conditions, ongoing monitoring and results, recent fire activity and related restoration actions, access and snag hazards, and food storage requirements.

There will be breakout sessions to discuss the different areas of the wilderness and the public will have the opportunity to interact with wilderness managers from across the complex. Representatives from the US Forest Service, Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks and Bob Marshall Wilderness Foundation will be present.

The Bob Marshall Wilderness Complex, an area of more than 1.5 million acres, includes the Great Bear Wilderness, Bob Marshall Wilderness and the Scapegoat Wilderness. The complex is managed by four national forests, Flathead, Helena, Lewis and Clark, and Lolo National Forests.

For more information about the meeting, or Bob Marshall Wilderness Complex management, contact Spotted Bear District Ranger Deb Mucklow at 758-3851.
