Bozeman, MT... The Hyalite Road, south of Bozeman in Hyalite Canyon will be closed Friday, October 5 while crews work to stabilize the landslide that partially blocks the road.

Work crews will install additional concrete barriers against the slope to prevent further sliding over the winter. A culvert and additional barriers on the outside curve of the road will also be installed at the location to protect the road bed. The road will remain restricted to one lane traffic through the winter. The Forest plans to repair the slide area next summer.
