John Allen Accepts Position as Forest Supervisor on the Deschutes National Forest in Bend, Oregon

John Allen, Gallatin National Forest Deputy Forest Supervisor has accepted the Forest Supervisor position for the Deschutes National Forest in Bend, Oregon. John will report for duty mid-August.

John began his Forest Service Forest Service career as a seasonal employee, then as a forestry technician on the Fremont National Forest in Central Oregon. He worked on the Winema and Umpqua National Forests as a certified silviculturist. Later he served as District Ranger at the McKenzie River Ranger District of the Willamette National Forest. John came to the Gallatin National Forest in 2004 as Deputy Forest Supervisor.

“I have enjoyed my time on the Gallatin National Forest and in the communities of southwest Montana. This truly is a special and unique place,” said Allen. “The Gallatin National Forest is doing some great work in community relationships, hazardous fuels reduction and a myriad of management activities that help this area stay a wild place for fish, wildlife and for people to recreate and enjoy.”
