

BUSH ADMINISTRATION IGNORES PUBLIC COMMENT--CHUGACH NATIONAL FOREST AT RISK!

After a five-year process of meeting with community members, various user-groups, conservation groups, and developers to develop a well-balanced management plan, the Forest Service surprised the public by releasing its Chugach Land Management Plan that offers less Wilderness protection than was recommended by the Reagan Administration. Over 30,000 Americans commented to protect special places in the Chugach, and the current plan leaves critical areas like the Copper River Delta, Prince William Sound, and the Kenai Peninsula at risk and unprotected.

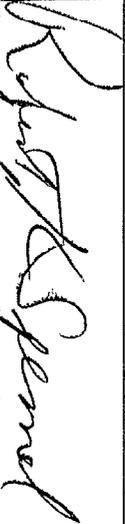

Please join us in appealing this rollback! Simply sign on to the citizen's appeal today to protect the Chugach National Forest! Don't let the Chugach fall victim to backdoor politics. Let your voice be heard and sign this appeal today.
