

Economic Action Programs King County, Washington

King County is a metropolitan county located on the east side of Puget Sound, giving it important shipping access. Seattle, the county seat and largest city in the state, is also home to the University of Washington. In land area, the county ranks 11th of the 39 Washington counties, with the Forest Service administering 26%; an additional 41% of the land is non-federal timberland. The county is the Pacific Northwest region's major manufacturing and shipping center.
