

Economic Action Programs Kittitas County, Washington

Kittitas County is located east of the Cascade Mountains in the geographical center of the state. Ellensburg, home of Central Washington University, is the county seat. The southern area of the county contains part of the U.S. Military's Yakima Training Range; Wenatchee National Forest covers much of the northwestern area. In 1905, a U.S. Reclamation Service project opening up 72,000 acres for agricultural development was of major importance to the county's economic development. Today, Kittitas County is an important food processing, mixed agriculture and stock-raising center. Mining and timber also add diversity to its economy.
