Tuttle Marsh Wildlife area is a 5,000 acre wetland complex managed by the Huron-Manistee National Forests. Various habitat improvement projects have been completed through cost sharing with Ducks Unlimited, the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation, and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. This healthy wetland supports several species of waterfowl, songbirds, insects and small mammals. Migratory birds, reptiles, insects and other animals converge on these wetlands to use them as nurseries and safe havens until their young are ready to venture out on their own.
