

Training DVD for Forest Service Employees Who Collect Fees

Lisa Outka-Perkins, Project Leader

There is more to being a fee collection officer than simply collecting and securing the money. The DVD “Collecting Fees in the Field: Mitigating Dangers” was produced to raise Forest Service employees’ awareness about the hazards and dangers they may face when collecting fees.

The DVD has three parts:

- The Job of the Fee Collector
- Collecting Fees From People
- Collecting Fees From Tubes and Booths

During this 33-minute training program, experienced fee collectors talk about the ways they protect their personal safety while doing their job.

Two videos from the “Personal Safety in Remote Work Locations” series are included on this DVD: “General Awareness” and “Avoiding Trouble.” These videos supplement this new training program.

To order this training program or the complete “Personal Safety in Remote Work Locations” series DVD, send an e-mail request with your mailing address and phone number to wo_mtdc_pubs@fs.fed.us.
