Celebrating our National Grasslands, Prairies & Wildflowers

A world of grasses and flowers stretched around me, rising and falling in gentle undulation. Acres of wildflowers of every hue glowed around me. What a new and wondrous world of beauty! What a magnificent sight! I was in the midst of a prairie[

Eliza R. Steele, A Summer Journey in the West 1841